VISUAL ARTS 10S – Course Outline - Ms. Rogalski

Welcome – Bienvenue – Tansi to the art room.

In the art room we recognize the guiding principles of SVRSS are learning, respect, responsibility and safety. All participants of the learning community are expected to abide by these principles. If these principles are compromised the issue will be addressed at the appropriate level based on the student handbook.

In room 113, students are expected to put forth an honest effort, attend class regularly, arrive on with the course materials.

Students are to demonstrate a respectful, cooperative, responsible attitude and behaviour towards their peers, EAs, SVRSS staff, the school, supplies, materials and myself!

Evaluations & Assessments

Assessment categories – assignment value will determine the weight of each assignment.
This section is worth 25% of your Cluster A grade.

Process
Studio Projects
Theory
Final Project

Process Assignments consist of formative and summative assessments; these assignments are designed to build student skills and abilities. These assignments consist of pre-assessments, sketchbook works, technical studies, observational studies, and creative activations.

Studio Projects are summative assessments which are designed for students to demonstrate their learning and skills. The final project is a student's demonstration of their cumulative understanding and application of the course content.

Theory is a combination of both formative and summative assessments. Formative assessments for this category include entrance and exit questions, response journals and knowledge checks. Summative assessments are completed through applied questions, tests and research assignments.

Final Projects are an artwork where students are able to utilize and apply their learning of course content and materials to make an original artwork for a summative assessment. This is the equivalent of an exam and occurs towards the end of the semester.

Digital Citizenship

The Visual Arts program will require students to conduct research on electronic devices to find reference and inspiration for artworks.

Technological resources are not to be used for social media or game launching websites or apps.

Cell phones are not permitted in the art room. If you have reference materials saved on your phone or personal electronic devices e-mail or upload those materials to teams. You may do this with teacher permission.

Log out of your accounts at the end of class.

Do not open other students' files

Course Summary and Content

Visual Arts begins with the development of skills and understanding of materials, techniques and approaches to art making working through different mediums.

Mediums will include but are not limited to pencil, pencil crayon, ink (pen, marker), watercolour, acrylic paint, wood, leather, clay, etc.

Mediums are explored through practiced applications that begin as demo and do, guided and progress to student independence. The course then progresses to learning how to apply techniques to learning skills of observation and depiction, learning how to create different subjects.

Topics Covered

Elements and Principles of Art and Design
Drawing Mediums and Techniques
- Pencil, pencil crayon, ink

Observational and Representational Drawing
- Figures, portraits or still life

Final Project

A demonstration of your learning, the final project allows you to apply techniques and practices covered through out your time in visual arts.

Lates and Absences

Lates
You are expected to arrive on time for class.
All lates will be documented and parent/guardian contact will be made as appropriate.
Most incidents will require and 1 on 1 conversation with the teacher.

Absences
Attendance is essential to success in the Visual Arts program as it requires instruction, demonstration and time in the classroom to create.
If you are going to be absent from class, you must have your parent/guardian contact the school.
You are accountable for what you miss and must make arrangements with the teacher to catch up.
